01. How to use this tool

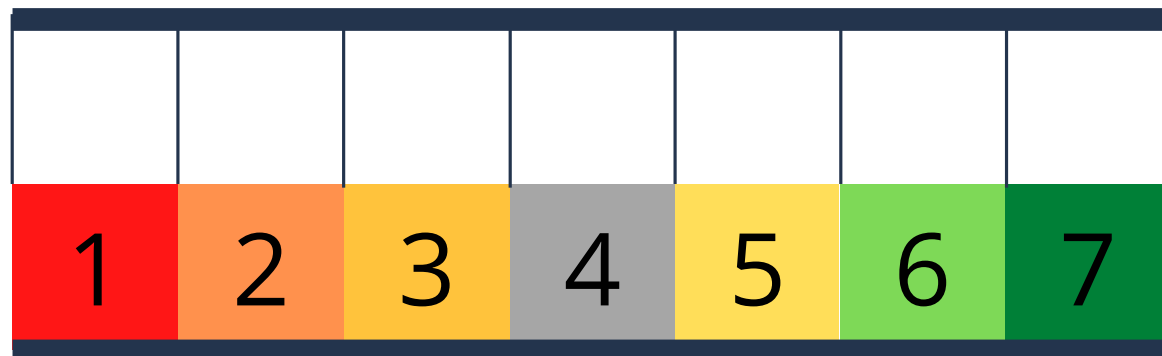

Encourage the participants to reflect on the topics suggested in the next pages - or add new ones if useful - by sketching and scribbling, and rating their experience. We can then add up the ratings and report them in the Spider Web Map at the end of the document. This should allow us to define our first Priorities For Action, to take forward in the NAP stage.

We can add our own options for recording further demographic information. The current version catches simple information such as age and gender, but not other items known to make a significant difference to an individual's overall wellbeing, such as disability, income level, lone living etc.
